Fui Tsikata is the head of Reindorf Chambers. He has led the firm's advice to international clients (lenders, sponsors) in corporate / commercial, project finance, infrastructure, energy and mining projects.

He has participated in many significant negotiations in Ghana involving infrastructure, mineral and power projects dating from 1982. He also has significant experience working on mineral and energy law and policy issues in Africa.

For the four-year period, 2014 to 2017, he assisted the Government of Ghana (GoG) in international proceedings relating to the maritime boundary dispute with Côte d'Ivoire. In this capacity, he participated in the drafting of inter alia (a) Ghana's response to an application by Cote d'Ivoire for Provisional Measures to prevent Ghana and its Contractors from authorizing or engaging in petroleum exploration and production activity; and (b) the substantive Memorial setting out its case as to the maritime boundary between the two countries. He was one of the advocates who made speeches on behalf of GoG at the oral hearing before the Tribunal in February 2017.

He has substantial transaction and litigation experience spanning over 40 years.

He taught at the Faculty of Law of the University of Ghana for twenty-nine years, from October 1976 to July 2005.
